downtown Vancouver. Add to this crude estimate, which does not -- and this crude estimate does not include shoppers from Portland and vacationers to the area who will now have access to Vancouver. It is hard for me to imagine that this is bad for business. I will be submitting a more detailed opinion -- or option -- to the CRC via e-mail that addresses the list of issues that I previously mentioned. For now, I want to go on public record. I believe that the best solution is a new bridge with light rail. Thank you. MR. HEWITT: Michelle -- is it Hamann? MS. HAMANN: Hamann. MR. HEWITT: Hamann, excuse me. MS. HAMANN: My name's Michelle Hamann. I live at 4112 Lincoln Avenue in Vancouver, Washington. My husband and I moved to Vancouver about six months ago. And the one thing that is lacking in the neighborhood that we chose is an efficient and acceptable way to use public transportation to get into Portland. It either necessitates poorly-timed buses, too many transfers, or is having to drive our car 50 blocks north, or

   I'm strongly in support of bringing light rail into Vancouver. When deciding where the light rail line
 2
 3
   should end in Vancouver, I think we need to look, 4
   not only to short-term costs, but to long-term 5
   plans, not only to get people into Portland, but for 6
   the city of Vancouver as a whole. I feel that the 7
   Mill Plain and Clark College options are 8
   unacceptable, because, while it gets light rail
   across the river, it does not get it to the people 10
   that actually are going to be using it. I feel that 11
   it does need to go north. I feel like the Lincoln 12
   Terminus is the best option, because it passes through the uptown village area past the businesses
13
   so that it is part of a full plan that does not just get people through residential areas into Portland, 15
16
   but can build a larger system for Vancouver on its 17
   own and linking Vancouver and Portland. Thank you.
